

March Meeting Announcement

Volume – 42, Issue – 4, April 6, 2026

Topic: University of Florida Student Activities and Competitions (1 PDH)

As a chapter, we are proud to actively support the next generation of concrete professionals, most notably through our ongoing engagement with local students and our annual clay shoot fundraiser, which helps make their involvement and success possible. At this upcoming meeting, the University of Florida ACI student chapter will take center stage to present highlights of their chapter activities, leadership efforts, and outreach throughout the year. They will also share an inside look at their experience competing at the recent ACI National Convention, including key takeaways and accomplishments. Join us to see how our chapter's support is making a real impact, celebrate student achievement, and stay connected to the future of our industry.

The University of Florida Student Chapter of ACI was founded in 2011 and is focused on networking and increasing the Gator Nation's involvement in the concrete industry. The UF Faculty sponsor is Dr. Christopher Ferraro, Ph.D., P.E., an active member and presenter of ACI's National Convention.
